

Outdoor Adventure Equipment Care and Maintenance Instructions

Tents

After returning from your trip, setup the tent to dry and inspect it for damage. Sweep out all debris, ensure the tent is dry inside and out, and all poles and stakes are accounted for and in working condition. If you notice any dirty areas, please use a damp sponge and dish soap to gently clean. Then allow to fully dry.

Sleeping Bags

Hang sleeping bag in an open area- over a clean door frame works well. Be sure that there are no left-over clothing items in the bag. Do not store sleeping bag compressed unless you are travelling. DO NOT WASH SLEEPING BAG. Our staff will handle that.

Sleeping Pads

Pads can shake clean be cleaned with damp cloth (and soap if needed), please return dried rolled.

Backpacks

Clean and dry out backpack after use. Sweep out all debris and ensure you have all of your personal belongings from the pockets. Unzip all zippers and open up to allow for air flow. If you notice any dirty areas, please use a damp sponge and dish soap to gently clean. Then allow to fully dry.

Backpacking Stoves

Pack stove lightly near the top of a pack. When possible, pack the stove in a large pot to protect it. Be sure to pack fuel on the outside of your pack or away from your food. When done using it, please bring back clean from any food residue or debris.

2-Burner Camp Stove

Please clean stove when food is spilled soon after the meal. This makes the clean-up easier before it solidifies or gets charred on there from subsequent uses. The burner and surrounding areas should be free of all food residue and particles. You may use dish soap and a scotchbrite pad to clean. Please no steel wool.

Pot Sets

Clean cookware after using. Most cookware is dishwasher safe. Water bottles should be used on the top rack only. You can use steel wool to clean stainless-steel pots.
